In my opinion, it is only a matter of time before the baby boomer generation prevails in the end of life debate and demands changes to legislation.

I believe I should have a choice about ending my life when I decide that the quality of my life is no longer acceptable.

It is no one else's business. I don't care about anyone else's religious, moral or philosophical convictions! Euthanasia will not be compulsory for them.

Medical staff who don't agree should not be required to participate.

Thanks for your consideration.
