ANSWER TO QUESTION TAKEN ON NOTICE
13 November 2018

Asked by MR MILLIGAN

In relation to: Bore water

MR MILLIGAN: And does it, the department, identify bore water anyway? I know you just mentioned that people come to you with an application to access. But do you have a map or anything identifying any where on how much bore water there is actually available in the ACT? And where it is located?

Ms Sargent: Yes we do have a map. And we actually have 184 bore extraction points, if you like. So—

MR MILLIGAN: How many, sorry?

Ms Sargent: 184 bores.

MR MILLIGAN: Right, okay.

Ms Sargent: Yes.

MR MILLIGAN: Where can we access—get that information from? Is it on your website? Or can we—

Mr Peffer: So we could look at providing a map to the committee if that would be useful?

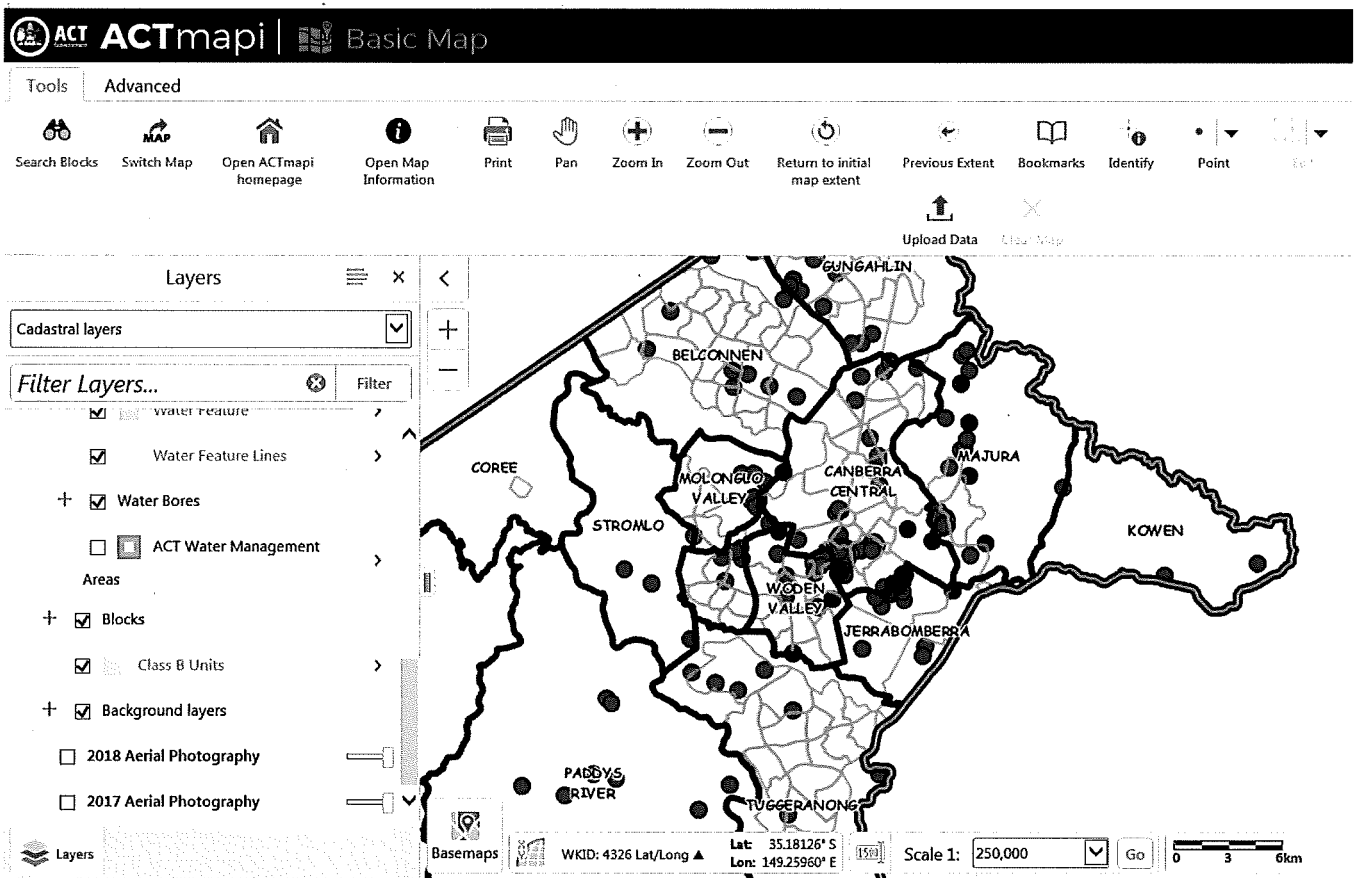

MR MILLIGAN: Yes. If you could, that would be great.

Gordon Ramsay MLA: The answer to the Member's question is as follows:-

Information on bore water locations is provided to the public on the ACT mapping service 'ACTmapi'.

ACTmapi is the ACT Government's interactive mapping service that provides a convenient and fast way to analyse ACT spatial data. ACTmapi data is normally updated daily, and displays the most up to date cadastral information for the Australian Capital Territory.

The locations and details of bores are located in the 'water features' layer which also has information on lakes, ponds, rivers, creeks, ACT catchment boundaries and the depth profiles Lake Burley Griffin and Lake Tuggeranong. A snapshot is provided below and is fully accessible at <http://www.actmapi.act.gov.au/>
