- (b) Recommendation 11.14 of the Royal Commission called for disability death review schemes to be empowered to monitor and review deaths, identify patterns and potentially avoidable risk factors, make recommendations to prevent or reduce deaths and report publicly on systemic findings;

- (c) in July 2024, the Government accepted Recommendation 11.14 in principle, recognising that a disability death review scheme presents an important opportunity to better understand factors contributing to risk of death among people with disability in the territory and enable robust evidence-based prevention measures;
 - (d) the Disability Royal Commission: Progress Report 2025 found that the Government had not yet commenced work to establish a disability death review scheme;
 - (e) ACT Official Visitors have recommended the establishment of a disability death review scheme as a priority to address the significant gap in the Territory's safeguarding framework;
 - (f) changes to the National Disability Insurance Scheme (NDIS) have commenced and people began losing access to supports for social, civic and community participation and capacity building daily activities from 1 October 2026; and

 - (b) consult with people with disability, representative organisations, families, advocates and relevant experts in designing the scheme;

2. After all text in paragraph (1)(g), insert new paragraph:

“(1A) further notes that:

- (a) reviews of NDIS participants who pass away are undertaken by the NDIS Quality Safeguarding Commission and there is no proposal for this to be discontinued;
- (b) any Disability Death Review Scheme enacted in the ACT prior to an agreed information sharing system with the Commonwealth entities would mean any information related to an individual’s participation in the NDIS would not be available for an ACT death review panel to consider;
- (c) new legislative powers will be required to establish a Disability Death Review Scheme that can compel information from organisations under the ACT’s jurisdiction with drafting of proposed legislation being subject to standard processes and timeframes.
- (d) the ACT Government recognises the importance of co-designing an ACT Disability Death Review Scheme with people with disability, the broader disability community, advocacy organisations, service providers and workers to ensure a meaningful and effective Scheme is developed;
- (e) the significant resources required to design and implement a Disability Death Review Scheme may have impacts on the delivery of other ACT priorities, as set out in the Disability Inclusion Strategy First Action Plan and forthcoming Second Action Plan; and”.

- (a) seek agreement from the Commonwealth and Commonwealth entities for an agreed information sharing system to support an ACT Disability Death Review Scheme;

- (3) calls on the Minister for Health to:
 - (a) immediately instruct CHS to:
 - (i) reconsider and improve the method of how these changes to service eligibility are communicated to patients;
 - (ii) ensure that existing referrals remain active and are assessed under the criteria applicable when the referral was accepted, unless a CHS clinician determines in consultation with the referring practitioner and patient that the patient's circumstances warrant a different course of action;

- (iii) ensure that any decision to close an existing referral is based on an individual clinical assessment, with clear reasons provided to and in consultation with the patient and their referring practitioner; and
 - (iv) ensure that changes to referral criteria do not compromise patient safety or prevent patients from accessing clinically necessary specialist assessment; and
 - (v) particularly ensuring that the clinical needs and vulnerability of patients are considered by clinicians when decisions are made about their ongoing specialist outpatient care; and
