MEDIA RELEASE

Committee announces inquiry into building quality in the ACT

The Legislative Assembly's Standing Committee on Economic Development and Tourism has resolved to hold an inquiry into building quality in the ACT.

Jeremy Hanson MLA, Chair of the Committee, said that, "the Committee resolved to inquire into and report on the quality of new buildings in the ACT and any potential or actual causes of poor building quality in the ACT. There has been concern in the community for some time about building quality, particularly newer apartment developments. As Canberra's population grows and more housing, including medium and high density housing, is constructed it is important that our community has a robust regulatory framework governing building quality."

Mr Hanson said that "poor building quality can cause significant stress and losses to owners and occupiers. The need for rectification works can also impose significant economic costs on the construction industry and the ACT economy".

The Committee would welcome submissions from stakeholders and the general public. Written submissions should be lodged by 6 July 2018.

The Committee has released a discussion paper to provide those interested in making a submission with some background on the current regulatory regime and some of the key issues that they may wish to consider Submissions should include your full name, postal address and telephone number. Electronic lodgement is preferred.

Under the inquiry's terms of reference the Committee will consider:

  - b) Compliance by builders with the building's approved construction plans;
  - c) The adequacy of regulatory mechanisms to ensure compliance with approved construction plans;
  - d) The role of inspections and audits in the regulatory process; and
  - e) The appropriateness of current practices for appointing certifiers, including addressing the potential for conflicts of interest.
2. The merits of standard contracts or statutory requirements in contracts covering build quality.

4. Processes and practices for the identification and rectification of defects including;
  - a) Current mechanisms available for defect identification and redress;
  - b) The effectiveness of those mechanisms to ensure rectification in instances where standards have not been met;
  - c) The adequacy and accessibility of those mechanisms especially for individuals or body corporates; and
  - d) The effectiveness of efforts to address “phoenixing” – the transfer of assets from an indebted building company to a new one to avoid paying its liabilities.
5. The cost effectiveness of current building compliance and defect rectification practices for industry, government, individuals or body corporates and the potential for the introduction of alternative dispute resolution mechanisms.
6. The role of Access Canberra.
7. The regulatory setting or practices in other jurisdictions that could inform consideration of any of the above.
8. Personal experiences that could inform consideration of any of the above.
9. Any other relevant matter.
