To Jo Clay, Suzanne Orr and Mark Parton, Standing Committee on Planning, Transport and City Services

The 24-apartment complex in [REDACTED] where I have an investment unit has three common property power-points in the basements of both buildings. I have been the chair of the Executive Committee for over ten years.

I have no idea how to go about assessing the impact on the complex's electricity network from EVs, or how to install chargers. Or how to cater for visitor charging.

We have a unenthusiastic strata manager, a random Executive Committee, and an apathetic Body Corporate. Without guidance from the ACT Government, when the first EV car arrives at the complex I will be putting the unit on the market to avoid having to work out the most economical and fairest way of providing electric vehicle charging.
