My submission to this inquiry is that additional billboards would ruin the amenity of the local environment too much to be worth it. This very much feels like government seeing some flashing neon dollar signs! It is not in the public interest.

Canberra is great because it is unlike Sydney. People can raise families here without being bombarded by advertising and other litter. The so called corflutes demonstrate what will happen if we weaken any of these laws. The city will just become an irritating mess!

This should not be conflated with "potential to enliven urban areas" or any other government spin. This would just be a mess! Shut it down.
