I have been lucky to have got this disability built house however because it is a dual occupancy dwelling and the other people have in the other house seems to think that own the driveway as I is a double driveway and they were using the driveway as it was theirs and not the other persons as well . All in all it is a great house with plenty of space . One thing just don't put the disabled houses with bedrooms close to driveway as it could be annoying to hear cars come and go all the time or the friends of neighbours sitting in car with motor going for two hours at a time right outside windows and also doing work on cars on driveway anti right outside the disabled houses front door and making noise late at night . So maybe build houses.with seperate driveways so each house has its own access and not sharing.

Kind regards
Daniel Black
