Notices

1. MS BRESNAN: To move—That this Assembly:
   (1) notes that:
      (a) whether a woman chooses to birth in a hospital, at home or in a birth centre she must have the right to access a registered care provider of her choice and to make her own fully informed choices about her care, and this is consistent with the United Nations endorsed Charter of Health Consumer Rights and the Convention of Elimination of all Forms of Discrimination Against Women;
      (b) women in the ACT are at risk of losing the option to have a homebirth that is attended by a registered midwife;
      (c) when a woman makes an informed consent there is a duty of care to provide her with the best care practicable and a responsibility not to abandon care, as is longstanding practice in the United Kingdom; and
      (d) at the next Health Ministers Conference in November 2011, Health Ministers are likely to discuss a position statement regarding homebirths; and
   (2) calls on the ACT Government Minister for Health to go to the Health Ministers Conference and:
      (a) ensure women’s safety by enabling women’s access to a registered midwife for a homebirth;
      (b) ensure the Health Ministers Conference is aware of data collected over all states and territories that demonstrate sound outcomes for homebirth attended by registered midwives; and
      (c) report back to the ACT Legislative Assembly in December 2011.

2. MS BRESNAN: To move—That this Assembly:
   (1) notes:
      (a) that people experiencing a severe mental illness involved in the Justice system can be treated in the Crisis Support Unit (CSU) at the Alexander Maconochie Centre (AMC), the Psychiatric Services Unit (PSU) at The Canberra Hospital, or transferred to a forensic mental health inpatient unit in New South Wales (NSW);
      (b) the CSU was designed for short term stays, however the Knowledge Consulting Report found:
         (i) that this practice has not been adhered to;
         (ii) one detainee was treated there for nine months; and
         (iii) detainees had not had regular access to green outside areas or outside programs in their time in the CSU;
      (c) the number of detainees given treatment at the PSU is small and the PSU has:
(i) returned patients to the AMC because the PSU was full; and
(ii) handcuffed detainees to a bed while they were held at the PSU;
(d) transferring a detainee to a NSW forensic mental health inpatient unit diminishes their opportunity to retain contact with family and friends, an essential component of rehabilitation;
(e) the Bimberi Youth Justice Centre does not have a CSU;
(f) the ACT Government had previously committed to developing a forensic mental health inpatient unit with 15 beds to treat people who were either:
(i) unfit to plead due to mental illness; or
(ii) being held on remand or a sentence at the AMC or Bimberi and experienced a significant deterioration in mental health;
(g) the ACT Government is now stating that detainees from the AMC or Bimberi would not be sent to a forensic mental health inpatient unit for treatment, and because of this, the remaining demand for such a unit is insufficient for it to be viable if built for the ACT; and
(h) that Tasmania with a population of 500 000 has a purpose built forensic adult mental health inpatient unit, the Wilfred Lopes Centre, with 35 beds, which treats both types of patients outlined in parts (1)(f) (i) and (ii) and if the ACT followed the Tasmanian ratio of forensic mental health bed numbers, the ACT should have 25 beds;

(2) expresses its concern for those detainees who have a severe mental illness and are held in the CSU for an extended period; and

(3) calls on the ACT Government to:
(a) recommit to a model of care that would see detainees from the AMC and Bimberi able to access a forensic mental health inpatient unit; and
(b) report to the Legislative Assembly on 6 December 2011:
   (i) about work being done to measure demand for the forensic mental health unit and whether capacity should be increased to 25 beds;
   (ii) providing an outline of the costs for the proposed unit and what those costs involve;
   (iii) on what interim options can be provided to detainees who stay for medium to long periods in the CSU, until such time as a forensic mental health unit is developed locally, including, for example, temporary use of the Quamby buildings and mid week stays at the Periodic Detention Centre; and
   (iv) a timeline for the Government’s future work on this area and reports to the Assembly. (Notice given 15 November 2011. Notice will be removed from the Notice Paper unless called on within 2 sitting weeks – standing order 125A).
